VPN for Remote Office Connectivity

The mission of the Kolmac Clinic is to help adults establish a satisfying life without alcohol or other addictive drugs. The program was founded over 30 years ago and since then has provided help to almost 10,000 people in the Washington metropolitan area. A team of dedicated, caring medical and clinical staff help patients deal with an array of drug and alcohol problems that are often complicated by other medical and behavioral conditions.

“The challenge for the clinic was how to tie their three remote clinics together to a database server in their main office,” explains Tom Cavanaugh, President of T C Solutions, a systems designer and integrator.

“The main office schedules admissions and appointments for all locations, as well as, processes insurance claims. The remote clinics needed the ability to access the office schedules and patient database quickly and easily.”

The RouteFinder™ SOHO security appliance was an easy answer. For LAN-to-LAN connectivity, it uses the IPSec industry standard protocol, data encryption, and the Internet to provide high performance, secure VPN connections between the main office and the three remote clinics, as well as the T C Solutions office. It provides up to 15 tunnels with strong 3DES or AES encryption using IKE and PSK key management to ensure information remains private.

For off-site access, the RouteFinder SOHO security appliance supports the PPTP VPN client built into the Windows operating system. This provides 40-bit or 128-bit encryption, user name and password authentication.

“With the RouteFinder SOHO security appliance, anyone at any location can check patient records,” explains Cavanaugh. “In addition, all insurance claims are processed within 24 hours. This was exactly what they were looking for in a solution!”

T C solutions recommended the RouteFinder SOHO security appliance based on its simple setup, and reliable hardware and software. “Multi-Tech provides the best technical support I’ve ever received for any product from any company,” Cavanaugh said. “I can always rest-assured it’s going to work as promised!”
